Pause. Hang up. Verify.

Your take-home from Connor MacIvor's community talk. Keep it by the phone.

When a call, text or email asks for money or secrecy

1. Pause. Pressure to act right now is a warning sign.
2. Hang up or stop replying. You don't owe anyone an answer.
3. Verify on a number you already have, like your saved contact or the back of your bank card. Never the number in the message.
4. A familiar voice or caller ID is not proof. A family phrase helps, but still call back.

Stop and check if anyone asks you to

- Pay with gift cards, cryptocurrency, a wire or cash pickup
- Keep it secret, or "don't tell anyone"
- Move your money to "protect it"
- Read back a code that was sent to your phone
- Call a pop-up number, or let them into your computer

My private plan

Person I trust: _____

Number I already know: _____

Backup person and number: _____

Fill this in at home and keep it. Never write your family phrase on this sheet.

Using AI safely

- Use made-up names and details when you try it.
- Never type passwords, codes, account numbers, or your Social Security or Medicare number.
- It can be wrong and still sound sure. Check anything important at the original source or with someone qualified.

Before you pay for anything called AI, ask

1. Show me it doing my task, with made-up details.
2. How can I check that claim myself?
3. What will it see, keep or share?
4. What's the full cost, when does it renew, and how do I cancel?
5. Who helps me when it doesn't work, and what won't it do?

Ask these of anyone selling AI, including Connor.

If something went wrong

You deserve help without blame. Act quickly.

- Call your bank or card company using the number on your card. Ask if the payment can be stopped.
- Save the messages, numbers and receipts.
- Report it: ReportFraud.ftc.gov and IC3.gov
- If your identity was used: IdentityTheft.gov
